most part, the addresses are different, and although the person may be the same, the reverse is possible. Many names are repeated in the Goldsmiths' books by reason of the re-registration of marks; but wherever it has been ascertained that the same person—not being associated with another—has re-entered his name, the repetition has been avoided, except in the case of Paul de Lamerie and a few others, where a change in the spelling of the name appears to be noteworthy.

Some names have been found recorded in one year only; others in two years, one immediately following the other, or at very short intervals. It should not be concluded in such cases that the goldsmith worked for a period no longer than is thereby indicated, because marks have been found to have been in use for a much longer period than is denoted by records. In many instances marks have been used before registration, and in others they have been used by successors after the death of the goldsmiths in whose names they had been entered:—

("Earliest Mention" and "Latest Mention" refer to the earliest and latest mention which has been noted; d. means died; c. means circa.)

* Many of the names in this list, although appearing as "last mentioned" in 1850 are those of goldsmiths who continued in business long after that date. Some, indeed, of the names which appear here, have been continued in use as "firm-names" down to the present day: it has, however, been deemed expedient to stop at 1850.
